Girl's Hereism. Is it true? The most hopeless among us must admit that if true there are exceptions. In New York a few weeks ago, Miss Minnie Swarts, while out seeking work for the support of her younger brothers and sisters, came upon a great fire, and learned that a number of firemen had just been disabled. She ran to a neighboring grocery, bought a gallon of milk, had it heated and carried it to the exhausted firemen. Then she assisted the physician to revive those who were overcome by smoke. She climbed a fence, and with an ax made an opening for the men to drag in their hose, and then, discovering two wounded firemen slipping into a water-filled cellar, she held them each by a leg till help came and she herself was faint and exhausted. The fire commissioner, learning of the important assistance of this 18-year-old heroine, invited her to call at his office. In a heartfelt little speech he presented her, in the name of the grateful department, with a purse stuffed with bank notes. Tears came to the girl's eyes, but she put aside the purse. She was deeply touched and grateful, but she could not take money for doing what was her duty and a privilege as well. And in this resolve she has ever since persisted. It is said by spectators at the fire that while Miss Swarts worked so valiantly for hours, scores of able-bodied men stood outside the fire-lines curiously looking on. A quick eye to see where one may be useful, an ability to act wisely in an emergency and sturdy refusol to be paid for it; these are refreshing attributes in either man or woman, and lift the humblest life out of the commonplace.

A greater rush than ever to Alaska is indicated this season, but mainly to A Spring Rush to American terri tory. In fact, Daw-Alaska. son City is inclined to migrate to Nome, and arrangements have been made to transfer its largest theater down the Yukon to the new seashore diggings. In the last two years prospectors have been looking over the agricultural resources of the territory, and are convinced that they are about the same as those of Europe in the latitude of Finland, a region that raises rye and barley for export. All the common vegetables have been raised in southeast Alaska. Wheat has been harvested there and grass is abundant and nutritious. Excellent wild fruits are found, including raspberries and two kinds of currants. The hardier vegetables have been grown as far north as Dawson. Some investigators report that Alaska in time will mainly produce its own fcod supply.

Complaints of the chronicles of horrors with which the press, or a part of it, teems in this day and land, are perhaps well founded, but they are not new. In one of the earliest American papers, printed before Franklin began his editorial career, an apology for lack of good news was based on the ground that the English prints were "generally stufft with Robberies, Cheats, Fires, Murders, Bankruptcies, Promotions of some and Hanging of others." That was a century and three-quarters ago. If we are no better than in those days, we are assuredly no worse.

A physician at the meeting of the Jefferson County (N. Y.) Medical society recently made the statement that the decrease or compensation of physicians in recent years is due to the fact of the study of preventive medicine by the profession and the advancement of popular hygiene having so decreased the amount of illness. He thought that the improvement of health in the community was likely to be progressive. The society was of the doctor's way of thinking, for it warmly applauded his address and tendered him a vote of thanks.

Some three or four years ago a wealthy man of Chicago told a young woman that he would provide for life for a protege of hers, a helpless man, if she would collect a million postage stamps. She had just done so, but in the meanwhile the helpless man has not only recovered his health, but has made a fortune of a quarter of a million, while the young woman's parents have died and left her in straitened circumstances.

OUR GLORIOUS COUNTRY.

Have you watched its marvelous growth? If not, The Weekly Enquirer wants to study the strides it has made. The first census of the United States was taken in 1810. Since then every succeeding ten years. The result has been as follows:

| Year. | Population. | Year. | Population. |
|-------|-------------|-------|-------------|
| 1810  | 7.239,881   | 1860  | 31,443,321  |
| 1820  | 9.633,822   | 1870  | .38,558,371 |
| 1830  | .12,866,020 | 1880  | 50,155,783  |

Here you have the figures of a basis of calculation. The problem now is: What will be the population of the United States, excluding recent acquisitions. The result is usually announced in July of the census year.

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER is anxious to engage all in a study of their country. To this end it will distribute cash amounting to $25,000, for solutions received of the population of the United States Census, as follows:

AND AFTER

By Julia Truitt Bisho

THE Woman in White had passed through a most triumphant day ad was weary. She tossed her hat to a bed, her gloves and fan to a chair, and she herself dropped into the great willow rocker-a mass of fluffy white draperies, her deerlike head, with its crown of red-brown hair, lifted above the foam. The Woman in White had been younger, but she had never before been so beautiful.

Because she had won him-and because she had no right to him. Because he had once scorned and flouted her, and had passed her with his wife on his arm and a look of cold contempt in his eyes-and because now he had followed her for days and days, and she had made him sue for a kind word from her-her, the scorned and despised. Because she had laughed in his face and had baited and lured him until he had thrown to the winds his decent life and all the long years of uprightness and the position among men for which he had struggled, and was ready to follow her to the world's end. And because he was the one man whose seorn had cut deep into what she called her soul!

She looked at the radiant thing in the mirror and laughed, and turned the flashing bracelet about and around on her wrist; and a something almost womanly came into her face as she realized that it was not the diamonds she cared for-no! she would have loved a ribbon if he had given it to her with that look on his face, and would have kissed it as she did this, with a passionate delight.

And the Woman in Gray, standing in the door, saw her kissing the bracelet. "May I talk with you a few minutes?" asked the Woman in Gray; and the Woman in White saw her reflection in the mirror. What she saw was a slender, gray-clad woman, with a pale, pale face, and dark eyes with darker shadows under them, and brown hair that was beginning to whiten with

The Woman in White stared insolently at the reflection in the mirror and "I don't know what my servants can be thinking of," she said, without turning. "I really have nothing for you, my good woman. Perhaps if you go down, some of my people will show you the way out."

"But I must see you for a little while," said the Woman in Gray, putting aside the insult, and coming slowly nearer; and there was a deadly stillness about her as she drew a chair forward and sat down in it. Then they looked at each other-the Woman in Gray and the Woman in White.

"I think perhaps you know me," said the Woman in Gray. "No doubt people nave pointed me out to you as the wife

"They have," said the Woman in White, haughtily, taking up a steel paper knife from the table near at hand and playing with it. "To what do l owe the honor of this visit?"

The Woman in Gray looked at the paper knife and smiled wearily.

"You mistake me," she said. "Some women might have thought of thatbut you will live. See!-to-morrow I go upon a long journey; and I knew that I must see you face to face before

"What possible interest can I have in your plans for traveling?" cried the Woman in White, contemptuously. "Pray consult your dressmaker in stead-and tell her for me that she should be killed if she ever dresses you in gray again. It is not becoming.

'You are bitter," said the Woman in Gray; "and we have so little timeand we are so near the tragedies of both our lives. A little while ago I,was bitter against you, too; but now I am too sad to be very bitter. I see how past remedy it is. I am not here to beg you to be merciful. Even if you wished, you couldn't give me back what I have lost."

"Well, you have had your chance!" cried the Woman in White. "And you have lost it! Who but yourself is to

The Woman in White had thrown to inclose subscription price to the prudence to the winds with that speech, and now rage and jealousy and insolent triumph were curiously blended in the beautiful face, and flushed in a red glow from the eyes. "Yes-I have lost it," said the Woman in Gray. "And having learned this, past all doubt, I would not try to keep him if I could. I am going away, and he shall live his life in peace. I have merely come to ask you what kind of

The Woman in White threw herself back in her chair and raised her beautiful arms above her head.

"Oh, you cold-blooded woman!" she cried, clasping her hands above the shining coil of her hair. "You icy wives that go your round of what you call 'duties,' and sew on buttons and have good dinners and sit at the head of the table, as interesting as that Dresden shepherdess, month after month and year after year, and then are shocked and outraged when he meets a flesh-and-blood woman and loves her! What kind of life will he have? Why, he will learn for the first time that he is alive! What right have women like you to talk about love!women who give a man up the first time he looks another way! Why, I would make myself the most beautiful and most attractive creature in the Passengers desiring information and rates to Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska and points in the far West, including Calationia, should address and most attractive creature in the world to him, so that he could never even look at another woman—and then, if he looked, I would not go away and leave him-I would kill him!"

She clutched the paper knife in her right hand—and lifted the left hand W. H. McDoel, Vice-Pres. & Gen. Mngr. and kissed again the flashing circlet Charles H. Rockwell, Traffic Mngr. on the wrist.

The Woman in Gray looked at her, and the sight was branded on her memory. When she spoke again, it was in lower tones. Her eyes were fixed on a ring-a loose, loose ring, that she was turning around on her finger. "Perhaps we were mistaken about having loved each other," she said, absently, us though she were talking to herself. "We were both so young, and so ignorant. We were married earlier than we had intended-because my mother died, and I was left alone, and was such an unprotected child-and so we were married; and we agreed that we were to study together, because we were both so ambitious-for him. And perhaps I couldn't have kept pace with him, at my best; but I had to take in sewing to help him along, so I hadn't much time-and in a little while he was away beyond me. I have never caught up with him since--but I have always gone on studying, so that I don't she is well rid of him."-Indianwouldn't quite disgrace him when he became a distinguished man.'

The Woman in Gray stopped to put a delicate and tremulous hand to her throat. "When he was studying law," she went on, presently, "his eyes were troubling him, and so I read aloud to him for many hours every day. Sometimes I almost wished his eyes would fail a little more-a great deal more, so that he could be more dependent on me-for I was very young and ignorant then; and, you see, I thought

The Woman in White did not speak. She was sitting quite still, as though she were a marble woman. "And even away back at the first," the Woman in Gray went on, in that desolate self-communing, "when we were ignorant boy and girl together, we had quite settled it with ourselves that he was to be a distinguished man. We even made a little play of it, telling one another that people would one day point out with pride the poor little house where we had lived, and where we had so much trouble paying the ient; and then we would laugh so merrily-oh, where has the laughter all gone! And so we went on, looking forward always to the day when he would be famous, and working and planning for it—and I always pictured myself so proud, so proud of his triumphs! We cold-blooded women feel very deeply sometimes, and think long thoughts! And now he has won the honors we dreamed of-and to-morrow I am going on a long journey!"

She slowly arose, and the marble Woman in White saw for the first time that she had a little package in her thin hand.

"I have something to leave with you," said the Woman in Gray; "something to give you. See, it is a little bundle of letters. They are the letters of an undeveloped and ignorant boy to a poor little girl. I have cherished them a long time-but I give them to you now, because—because they have already gone out of my life."

An hour afterward the Woman in White found that she had been alone for a long time, and that the last of the poor little letters was open in her hand. A withered rose had dropped from it and lay in her lap among the folds of fluffy white. The air was filled with the fragrance of the little oldtime rose, which seemed to be part of the old-time boyish love, that was dead as the rose. Once, long ago, in her life also-

The radiant face of the Woman in White was pale and old and weary loolsing as she tied the letters in the packet again and laid this penciled line upon them: "Do not go on the long journey-for go on a journey of my own." Then she slipped the bracelet into the velvet case and sealed and addressed it, and called a servant to go on two errands. "I am going away to-night, John," she said, as his foot hesitated on the stair. "Send Susan up to pack."

And then she stood in the middle of the room, her head drooped, pressing back something that tried to come to her eves.

"And now for new fields," she said despairingly. "And the life in them-?"—Globe Democrat.
